

World War II was the central global event of the 20th century, and its powerful legacies—for good and bad— continue to impact our world. The lessons of patriotism, teamwork, sacrifice, optimism, and leadership found in its history are essential subjects for training our students to become active, educated citizens...

~ Dr. G.H. "Nick" Mueller, President & CEO of The National WWII Museum

Educators will move from the shock of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, through the jungles and volcanic moonscapes of Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima, to the post-atomic wastelands of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Along the way, they will analyze key decisions, debate historical interpretations and evaluate evidence. They will also view the war through the eyes of those who experienced it firsthand.

Open to all LAUSD educators. Lessons include primary sources, essays, reference materials, and online videos from historian Dr. Richard Frank.

Participants will receive

1 Salary Point and Multicultural Education Credit

Educators & curriculum leaders are invited to take part in a one salary point and multicultural education credit course on The National WWII Museum's From the Collection to the Classroom series called "Volume One: The War in the Pacific." Course #55-19-187

Aligned to ELA Common Core State Standards and National Standards for History
